

I strongly oppose lifting the limits of cross-ownership. Doing so would create a mass buyout and put the control of electronic information in the hands of a few corporations. The reasons for this law still hold true today, regardless of technological evolution. I also oppose how this change has been downplayed to the public so that the administration's agenda can be met with minimal backlash.